Knowing the Future

- ❖ The ability to understand and embrace the future
 1. Traditional
 - Data-based
 - Linear
 - Analytical
 2. Intuitive
 - Reading the signs
 - Pattern recognition
 3. Co-creative
 - Vision to action
 - Responding to a calling

Co- Creating with the Universe

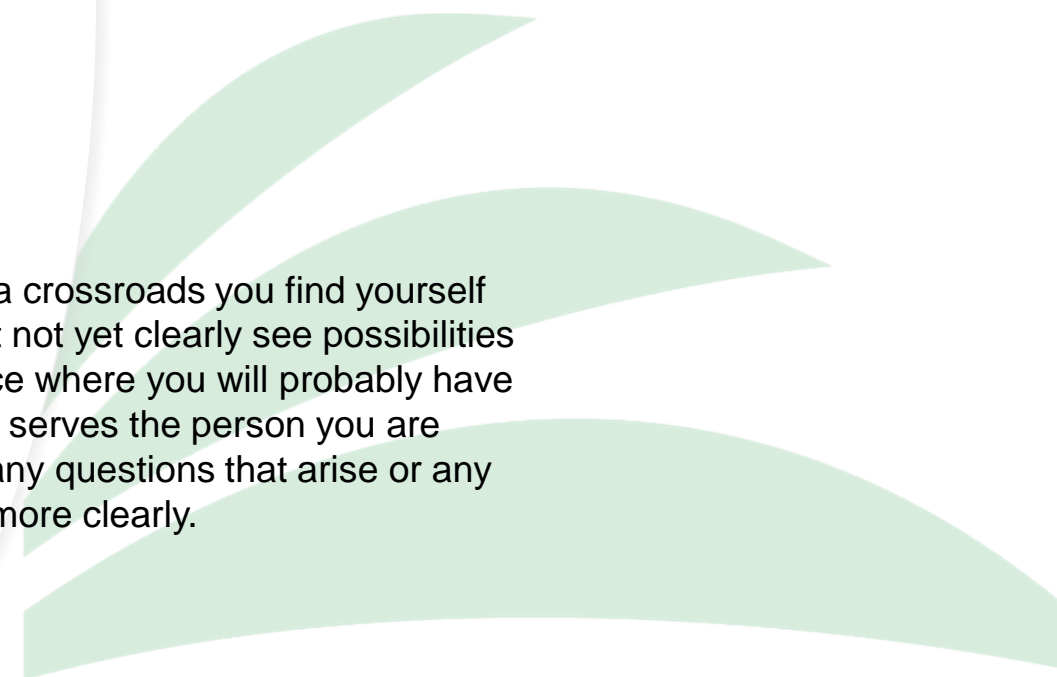

- Native Americans and indigenous people
- Jesus in the wilderness
- Buddha under the Bodhi tree
- The still small voice of God can speak to us through nature when we listen

Knowing the Future Exercise

- 5 minutes free-writing
- Crossroads
- Sense but not yet see - possibilities
- Letting go
- Questions that arise

Spend 5 minutes free-writing about a crossroads you find yourself at, a place where you can sense but not yet clearly see possibilities unfolding in your life. It is also a place where you will probably have to let go of something that no longer serves the person you are growing into being. Make a note of any questions that arise or any specifics that you would like to see more clearly.

Dialogue with a Wisdom Figure

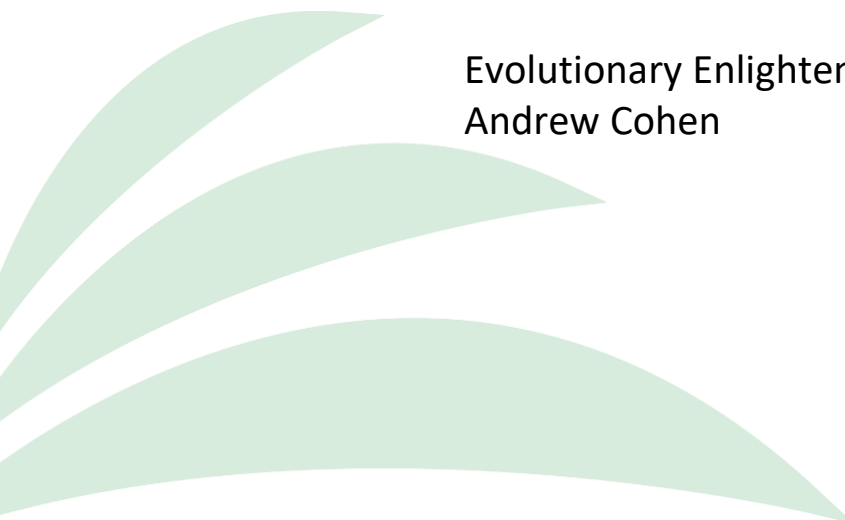

Think of a person who has served as a great source of wisdom for you. They can be someone living or dead, real or imaginary.

From the questions you defined in your Crossroads free-writing, identify one question that could be answered by your Wisdom Figure.

Knowing the Future Quotes

"It is always those individuals who are ahead of their time, living on the leading edge, who participate in the creation of these new structures or habits in consciousness. Eventually, when others progress through the already established stages of cultural development, they're going to follow in the footsteps of those evolutionary pioneers who went before them. When enough people take the new path, it will become, over time, an established cultural stage. But at this moment in our shared history, the next stage has barely been laid down. This is why the awakening human at the leading edge today bears such a profound responsibility to be an evolutionary pioneer--to be one who is literally living in that place between the present and the future."
